MEMORANDUM FOR: Deputy Director of Central Intelligence

SUBJECT: Use of Retired Officers

1. This memorandum contains a suggestion for the Deputy Director of Central Intelligence.

2. With reference to enlarging the number of retired officers the Agency could employ, the legislative technique is comparatively simple. We would need to obtain an amendment to section 5(f)(1) of the Central Intelligence Agency Act of 1949, as amended, either to change the number "fifteen" to a larger number, or if desired to eliminate the wording "not more than fifteen," which would mean there would be no numerical limitation. We could possibly make such a change in connection with our early retirement legislation, or it could be put in as a separate item. In either case we should discuss our proposal with the Russell and Vinson Subcommittees prior to making a formal presentation. I believe a numerical enlargement, say to fifty instead of fifteen, would be more acceptable and that the emphasis be placed on the need to obtain youngish and active retired officers who have received good technical training in their services of a sort that is needed in our operations and is difficult to obtain otherwise.

3. I recommend you suggest the above to the Director and raise the question of taking it up in our next meeting with the Vinson Subcommittee, which should be within the next two weeks.
